EXPRESSIONS
FROM

Hey.
I hope things are going well. Alspite of the "WAR", I hope you are getting to see beautiful things over there. That was so cool that you had sugar from Bremen. It just goes to show, this is a small world. We've all been fine, except for lonely GA. Weather and our sinus problems. Emily has developed what they say is full blown asthma. That is the scariest thing when your child can't breath.
I'm going to send you some photos. I hope they get there in one piece. Please let me know if you need anything that I could send you.

Rebecca drew you a picture, I'm sending it also.
I hope your wife is O.K. Do you get to talk to her?
I wish she were closer to us, where I could get to know her. But you're going to come back safe and sound. I miss you more than and then we'll see.

my head on the floor can say.

Thank you so much for my letter. And thank you for all the little notes and things you have sent all through the years. I love you, write my again soon.

This is Katie being silly with her hat.
Chuck "hates" that hat. His first look was "what the hell is that". I think its cute.

This is Emily acting silly on Valentines Day. She has two boy friends these days.

(age 8)

it was about this age when you were born.

CVS ONE HOUR PHOTO

Happy Valentines Day at school.
Rebecca got way to much. We have recently discovered she is allergic to milk and chocolate. I thought you would enjoy school pictures. where you could feel "old" now. HA. HA.
